- It is the only organization of its kind in the world
- Affectionately known as Australia's biggest family
- Tradition of caring over 96 years reaches out to thousands of Australian widows, families and children of soldiers who lost their lives of health during or following service in all conflicts since WW1 to Iraq
- Support and service now extend to include the dependents of members of today's Australian Defence Force who lose their lives or their health as a results of or after their military service
- With the help of a group of dedicated volunteers, known as Legatees, Legacy currently support around 52000 widows, children and dependents

- The Legacy Badge is a symbol of a proud Australian tradition spanning decades which continues to make a big impact on veteran's family today
- Legacy stands at the ready for every Australian Defence family, helping them rebuild their lives, as it has done since 1923
- In 2020 one of Australia's longest tradition, Legacy Week is as important as ever
- During Legacy Week think about the big impact you can make by buying a badge or going online to donate at www.adelaidelegacy.org.au
